reconnaissance in force. Company hit light German resistance at Verreville and pushed through. Company supported two medium tank platoons in attack to secure high ground south of Gravelotte. Attack jumped off from Malmaison and company received extremely heavy artillery, anti-tank, rifle and machine gun fire. In face of heavy resistance from Gravelotte, company moved with tanks around each flank of town and cleared German resistance from objective and surrounding area. After clearing area, position was untenable due to very heavy enemy artillery concentration. Tanks and company withdrew to assembly area 1/4 mile N.W. of Malmaison. Casualties very heavy. Company is almost entirely unable to fight effectively because of combat exhaustion and fatigue. Morale low because of high casualties.
