REVEAL PHASEOUT PLANS

Closing Deadline Of CCA, DivArty Set for Tuesday

Phaseout operations advanced to the Regimental level this week with the announcement that Combat Command A and Division Artillery will be closed out the first of September.

Plans call for the two remaining battalions in CCA—17th Medium Tank Battalion and 23rd Infantry Battalion—to be absorbed by Combat Command B. The closing of DivArty next week will necessitate the transfer of the 489th Armored Field Artillery and subordinate units to Reserve Command.

On September 16, Division Trains will be phased out leaving two Commands, CCB and Reserve, to carry the training load until November 4, their phaseout date. After Tuesday, there will be three regimental headquarters, six battalions and 26 companies in operation.

Company A, 129th Armored Ordnance Maintenance Battalion, will be transferred to Company C, 77th AIB, Reserve Command, Saturday to facilitate the closing of Division Trains by the middle of next month.

Civilian employees received notice last week that the separation of an appreciable number is not expected before October 1, with the possibility of 600 or more employees being required well into December.

While over in East Garrison, more than a thousand Reservists are putting the final touches on their two-week summer tour of duty today in preparation for going home Sunday. This will leave a practically deserted East Garrison, as far as military strength is concerned.

When this last and largest group leaves, the United States Army Reserve Headquarters, set up in May to handle the training of approximately 4000 reservists, will be closed.

The scheduled departure of the Reserve units brought an announcement by Special Services this week that activities of the Library, Service Club and Theater across Highway 101 will be stopped around September 1.

However, the East Garrison Guest House will be kept open as long as there is need for it. Plans for the phaseout of the remaining permanent units in East Garrison—the Stockade, Aviation Section, G-3, and 544th Searchlight Detachment—will be announced later, in addition to a decision on the chapels.

This week, however, there was a bustle of activity in the EG with the 311th Logistical Command, 31 attached units and other reserve organizations conducting training programs which include range firing, classroom work, drill and bivouac.

The 52nd AAA, fresh from field exercises at Hunter-Liggett Military Reservation, was also back in the Garrison for a short stay. Brig. Gen. E. C. B. Danforth, chief of the California Military District at the Presidio of San Francisco, conducted an inspection tour of the Reserve units on Monday and Tuesday.

Among other things he inspected the 311th Logistical Command in the field on three-day bivouac and the Quartermaster and Engineering Schools for Reservists.

Purpose of the "Soldier of the Year" contest is to give proper recognition to the outstanding enlisted men and women of the post.

Nominees will appear before a board consisting of the director of training, Col. Graden C. Waters, the assistant chief of staff, G-3, Lt. Col. Paul V. Tuttle, and the assistant chief of staff, G-1, Col. Willis E. Vincent. They will select the "Soldier of the Year."

40th Division's General Eaton Wins Second Star

The second star of a major general was pinned on the collar of Homer O. Eaton Jr., commander of the 40th Infantry Division, in a surprise ceremony Saturday morning at Hunter Liggett Military Reservation.

Major General P. Barrows made the presentation, informing Eaton, a brigadier general of the line, that Governor Earl Warren had ordered his promotion. Major General Earle M. Jones, adjutant general, who transmits the governor's wishes to the National Guard of California, delayed the delivery of the promotion to achieve maximum "shock effect."

After Barrows, a former president of the University of California, had pinned the second star on Eaton, more than 1200 men of the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment, led by Colonel John W. Guerard, Stockton attorney, passed in review in nearly 300 tanks and armored vehicles. General Jones, Major General R. F. Sink and Major General Daniel H. Hudelson, who commanded the 49th Division in Korea and Japan, observed the ceremonies.

Nearly 2,000 men of the 40th as well as attached units also participated in the ceremony, completing the first half of their two-week summer encampment.

Blue EM Uniforms

Washington.—Regulations authorizing the purchase and wear of dress blue uniforms by Army enlisted men are now being printed and will be released to all commands sometime this month.

The new uniform is optional and must be purchased by the wearer. Prescribed accessories include white gloves, dark blue cap, black tie, white shirt, black shoes and socks.

The new uniform is quite similar to the currently prescribed officers' dress blues.

Blood Center Will Close Soon

Plans call for closing the Blood Donor Center the last of next month, Maj. Chester T. Hino, coordinator, announced this week.

In five days next month, the San Jose Red Cross team will collect blood from the remaining 13 companies who have not contributed.

That, Major Hino said, will just about end the blood drive which this year has resulted in the donation of 11,812 pints by Camp Roberts soldiers and civilians.

The Major indicated that he felt sure the Post would have met this year's Sixth Army quota of more than 20,000 pints if the Camp had not been ordered to close.

Last week, the July drive ended with a total of 1682 pints of blood being contributed by 13 companies.

Company B, 23rd Armored Infantry Battalion was the highest unit of the four to donate last week with 150 pints.

Second with 149 pints was Company D, 77th Armored Infantry Battalion.

Next month blood will be collected on Sept. 1, 2, 3, 16 and 17.

K-Vet Offered Job As He Leaves Ship

Seattle, Wash. (AFPS)—When Cpl. Thomas M. Macaulay stepped off the troopship returning him from Korea, he was happy to be heading back to his home in Jersey City, N. J.

Then in a matter of minutes he was even happier. He was met by Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey, who was attending the annual governor's conference here, and promptly signed up for a job as a state trooper. Referring to the corporal's experience as an MP, Gov. Driscoll told reporters: "The Army has trained this boy for us; I've already signed him up for the New Jersey state police."

ORIENTATION VISIT

Col. David M. Dunne, new Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations, 6th Army, was scheduled to arrive on-post yesterday from Hunter-Liggett Military Reservation for an orientation visit.

Pvt. Rates One Star When Discharged

Wickliffe, Ky. (AFPS)—An Army private has been elected sheriff of Ballard County but won't be wearing his badge until he finishes 18 more months of his required service.

The private, 27-year-old Ernest Crice, won the Democratic nomination after announcing his candidacy while home on a leave earlier this year. That was the only time he spent in the county during the election campaign. He has no opposition in the November general election. Now he is on his way overseas to an assignment in the Far East.

Local Area Rent Control May Expire November 1

Rent control may expire in this area on November 1.

The Paso Robles Rent Advisory Board announced this week that they have passed on a recommendation to Washington, D. C., that controls be lifted on that date.

Members of the five-member board based their decision on the imminent closing of Camp Roberts which would relieve the pressure on housing in this area.

Largest Class Graduates Here

Largest class to complete Leaders Course training since the unit's formation a little over two years ago was graduated Saturday morning.

Maj. Gen. R. F. Sink, Commanding General, speaking to the 54 members of Class 100, stressed three qualities of leadership—a leader must know his stuff, must look after his people and must always tell the truth.

You can't fool the American soldier, the General explained.

Eight weeks ago 85 members of the class were greeted upon their arrival at Leaders Course by the 7th Armored Division band and were honored in cake-cutting ceremonies.

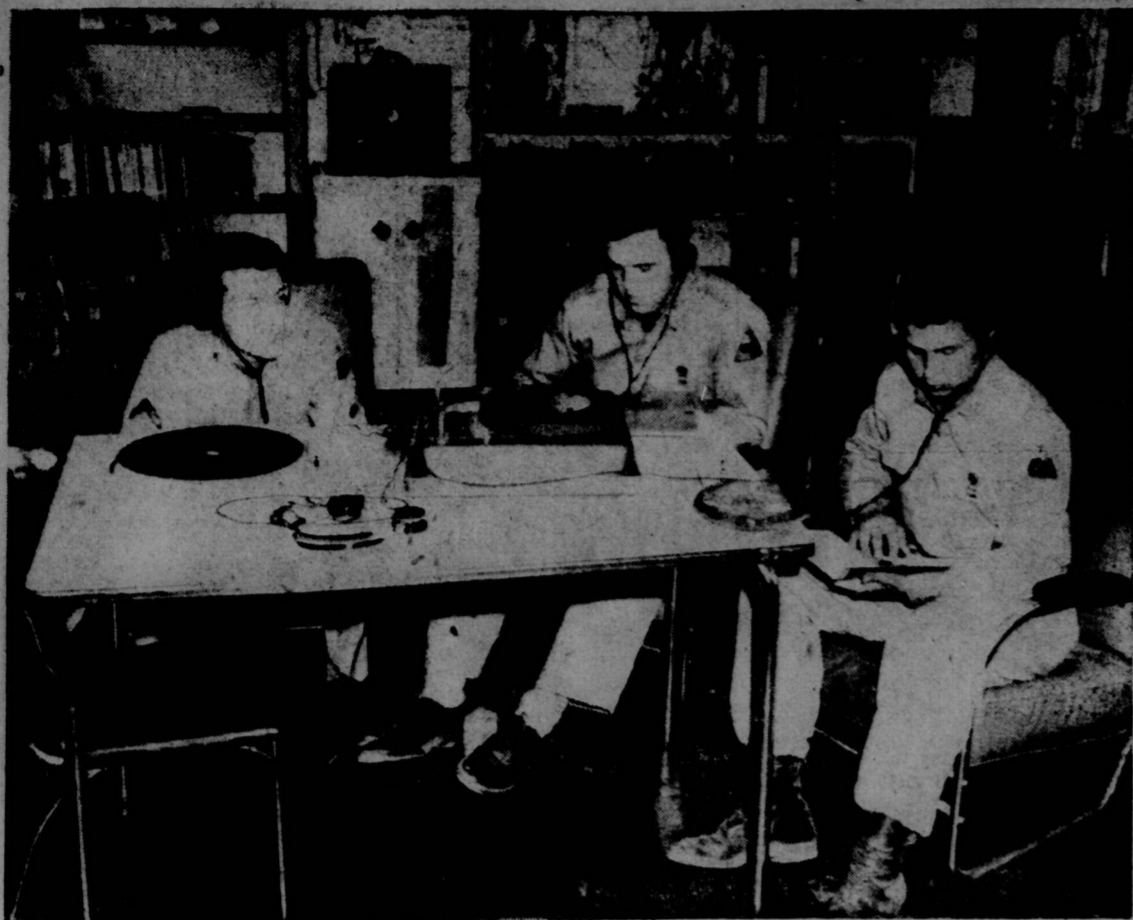

The graduation of Class 100 brought the number of students to finish the course, since Class 1 began on April 2, 1951, to more than 3,000.

Counting seven classes now in session and three more scheduled to start soon, the last one on Sept. 7, the total number of graduates is expected to reach approximately 3,450 by the time the course is closed out.

Pvt. Harlan G. Henry, Springfield, Ore., was picked as honor graduate of Class 100.

MAJOR GENERAL Homer O. Eaton, center, Commanding General of the 40th Division, California National Guard, was promoted to brigadier general in surprise ceremonies Saturday at Hunter-Liggett Military Reservation. Offering congratulations are, from left to right, Major General R. F. Sink, Commanding General, 7th Armored Division, Mrs. Daniel H. Hudelson, Major General Hudelson, who formerly commanded the 40th in Japan and Korea, and Col. R. C. Rohrer, Chief of Staff of the 40th Division. The "Sunburst" Division completed the first week of summer training at Hunter-Liggett on Saturday. (Signal Photo)

Eyes Tired? Then Bend Your Ear To Plays and Readings on Records

A completely different audible thrill is obtained by listening to the newest in records now available at the Post Library. These recordings range from Shakespeare's "Hamlet" and "Sounds of a Tropical Rainforest in America" to readings by Tennessee Williams, Charles Laughton and others. A phonograph with several earphones is located in the rear of the library, thereby eliminating distracting noises and assuring the listener of complete absorption in these "reading" records. For example T. S. Eliot's "The Cocktail Party," written expressly for the stage, offers excellent listening pleasure, and enables the individual to visualize the star, Alec Guinness, and the frivolous life of a flippant and futile society.

HELPFUL Miss Helen Minaker, post librarian, assists Cpl. John Geary, Headquarters Company, 6100 ASU, in selecting a record from the library's large collection. Besides the many new records, there are available popular, classical, semi-classical and western tunes for enjoyable listening in a conducive atmosphere. (Signal Photo)

Pictures of the play as produced in New York, the story's synopsis and several speeches can be found in the record's cardboard holder. Although the actors all have English accents, it is not too difficult to follow the play's theme. A really unique record is "Voices of Freedom—1901-50." On this record are to be heard the actual voices of William Jennings Bryan, William Howard Taft, Thomas A. Edison, Admiral Robert E. Peary, Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, Amelia Earhart, Will Rogers, F.D.R. and Harry S. Truman. Bryan, known as "the great orator," speaks about the freedom of the Philippines, recorded in 1901; Edison, the electrical wizard, talks about the future of electrical progress, recorded in 1908; and Adm. Peary, the discoverer of the North Pole, reviews his historic expedition to the top of the world, recorded in 1909. The record containing sounds of an American forest is unusual. There's not only the sound of rain, but animal noises, including monkeys, macaws, crickets, tree toads and parakeets. Tennessee Williams, the playwright, reads his own selections, including scenes from "The Glass Menagerie," "The Yellow Bird," a short story, and several poems. "The Yellow Bird" is from an out-of-print volume. It is the tale of the delightful evils that befall a girl who takes to smoking and men. Williams' southern drawl adds much to his story-telling voice. Charles Laughton reads favorite portions of the Bible, including "Garden of Eden," "The Fiery Furnace," "Noah's Ark," and "David and Goliath."

An audible anthology of modern poetry is "Pleasure Dome," in which T. S. Eliot, Marianne Moore, E. S. Cummings, William Carlos Williams, Ogden Nash, W. H. Auden, Dylan Thomas and Elizabeth Bishop read their own works. One of the world's greatest plays, "Cyrano de Bergerac," features Jose Ferrer giving both the "nose speech" and the "no thank you speech." The famous death scene is also included. Other records available are Carl Sandburg in a recital from his book, "The People, Yes," selections from the writings of Dylan Thomas read by the author, Lily Pons and Noel Coward in "Conversation Piece," Archibald MacLeish reading from his works, and John Gielgud and Pamela Brown in "The Lady's Not for Burning" by Christopher Fry. These records, as well as the musical selections, can not be checked out of the library, but the atmosphere there is very relaxing and conducive to listening. Miss Helen Minaker, post librarian, cautions all listeners to place the records back in the provided cabinet and also keep them in good listening condition by careful handling. The library is open on weekdays from 0900 to 2100 hours and on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays from 1200 to 2100 hours.

Private Learns Indian Style Water Discipline

Pvt. Clifford H. Duncan is now back in his company in Combat Command "A" telling his buddies about water discipline, Indian style. He returned recently from a seven-day emergency leave at his home at White Rocks, Utah, where, as a direct descendant of two Indian tribes, he performed in a tribal sun dance for three days and three nights—without eating or drinking. Pvt. Duncan, 20, was granted leave from Company A of the 23rd Armored Infantry Battalion at the request of the Department of the Interior, which wrote his commanding officer, Capt. Louis G. Giberson, asking that the trainee be allowed to take part in the dances. "It's quite an honor to be picked to take part in the Sun Dance," Pvt. Duncan said. "There were only 47 men in the dance." Part of the honor was the requirement for fasting. Although the dancing tapered off at night, the participants were still honored not to eat or drink. "The dance is always held in the hottest part of August," Pvt. Duncan said. "Going without water the first day isn't so bad, but the second day is very difficult. After that, though, the third day is okay. You're used to it then." The Sun Dance chief of the Uintah and Ouray Indian Reservation, where Pvt. Duncan's home is located, selected him for the dance. Pvt. Duncan's father, Ivan Duncan, an irrigation company employee, is an Ouray. His mother is a Uintah. In addition to the Uintahs and the Ourays, Indians from tribes in Wyoming, Colorado, Idaho, Utah and Oklahoma also took part in the Sun Dance. About 1600 Indians gathered for the spectacle, which was performed in authentic Indian costume. At the conclusion of three-day Sun Dance a war dance was held, followed by a feast. At the feast Pvt. Duncan got to make up for the three days of fasting, dancing and singing. "It wasn't so bad, going without water for three days," he said. "The dance used to take four days."

SINGER Anita Ellen was one of the stars of "Hollywood Cavalcade," Saturday's Theater 1 stage show. Blonde Miss Ellen sang "Embraceable You," "September Song," and other currently popular tunes. (Signal Photo)

Monterey Fair Closest Event

This weekend's closest attraction is the 15th annual Monterey County Fair and Horse Show, located about 100 miles north of the post. A side trip to Carmel is worth the extra time. Other events in the northern part of the state: San Francisco: Far Western AAU Swimming and Diving Championships at Fleishacker Pool, and the Midsummer Music Festival at Sigmund Stern Grove. Oakland: Light Opera Series in Woodminster Amphitheater, Joaquin Miller Park. Burlingame: USLTA National Junior Hardcourt Tennis Championships. ALL AROUND ROBERTS

Let's See This is About - Ahh About, Sorry, Can't Remember

By CPL. JERRY LITTMAN
I don't remember the guy's name, but he had an interesting theory and a glimmer of an idea which he figured would make him enough money to buy a new car. "The most important thing in the Army is not necessarily a sturdy physique, arches like London Bridge and the stamina of a marathon dancer," he opined as he carefully scraped the wax from a milk carton with his index finger. "There's one item that's more important to a trainee than a 19-inch bicep, and that's a memory. "For example," he explained, "take the first day you were in the Army. 'I'll bet a dollar to a band aid that one of the first questions you were asked was, 'What's your serial number, bud?' "Right?" "Yep," I brilliantly replied. "That's what I thought," he chortled. "But that was just the beginning. After that you were asked at one time or another, the number of your rifle, chow card, pass, bunk, laundry mark, shoe size, shirt size, head size, vehicle registration, ID card and barracks. Right?" "Yeh," I retorted. "Then," he said warming to his subject, "if you've ever been 'cleared' by the Army you were asked to remember and record every place you've lived in during the past 15 years, the name, address and immediate superior of every place you've ever worked, besides such sundry facts as the middle initial of anyone you've given for references. "Add this to the chain of command from the president to your company commander, general and special orders, and vehicle number, if you drive a military machine, and you've got a memory problem that would challenge an elephant. "Now I propose," he confided, in the tones of a Main Street pitch artist, "that you sign up for my memory course. "You'll have no more problems remembering with this handy little 10—no, let's see, 12-lesson course. When anyone asks you your social security number, you won't have to mumble and fumble in an embarrassed fashion. "Sounds pretty good," I said. "What's the number of your barracks? I'll drop by some night and see what the course includes. "Got the number right here," he said as he pulled a card out of his wallet. From the back of a normal duty hours pass he read, "7654321." The above was written by Cpl. John Kendall, Parade reporter. This starts a new "All Around" policy. Short stories of 150 words, and other items from personnel may be contributed. Simply call extension 457 or visit the Parade office, bldg. 106, on the hill. Thanks to M/Sgt. Ray Bowman, editor of the "Log Sheet," publication of the 311th Logistical Command, a reserve unit now training in East Garrison, for this bright quip. There's one in every outfit dept.: At the station roll call preparatory to departure at the Los Angeles depot, Lt. Col. Dan Grayson was sounding off names with satisfying results when he encountered the name of a "Lt. Justice." When no answer was forthcoming, some one spoke up, "There ain't no justice!"

'Popeye' Turns To 3-D for New Space Cartoon

Things have reached a sad state—even Popeye has turned to 3-D! First release will be "Popeye—The Ace of Space." Another idea shattered. We thought Popeye was above all this mortal nonsense of 3-D and space ships, but we were wrong. Columbia's "From Here to Eternity" has recorded the highest gross ever attained by a motion picture, playing without a stage show anywhere in the world, in its first five days at New York's Capitol Theater. Take was $126,557. Just sort of proves a point about people being willing to pay for good pictures... Mrs. Errol Flynn, better known as Patrice Wymore, back in town to wrap up financial affairs. Says husband Errol will return to the U.S. contrary to all rumors. Latest craze in the Midwest that has the film industry rocking is the introduction of a drive-in with individual screens for each car. Dagnet title being changed for re-sale. Officials turned down the proposed "The Cop"... British television has pulled one of the big surprises of the year with the successful introduction of 3-D on the home screen. Richard Bissell's towboat story of the Mississippi "Stretch on the River," has been purchased by Columbia. It will be one of their top productions of the 1953-54 schedule. It is currently selling in the pocket book form. Victor Mature, opening in "The Robe" in the part of the Greek slave can also be seen in "The Glory Brigade"—a story of Korda that was shot almost entirely at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. — (A. F. P. S.)
