SUBJECT: CRASHED AMERICAN AIRMEN.

It has been reported to me by natives, that some time presumably about February or March, an American aircraft was shot up round Hansa Bay and crashed in flames and blew up near "SEFFEN" Bogia Strat 4 miles to 1 inch (W) C 583. Four of the crew bailed out and landed near the village of "SEFFEN" all were burnt around the head and arms. On contacting the natives they asked them to guide them inland, but the natives told them that the Japs were in the village behind and it would be better to hide there, however the airmen insisted to be taken inland south of "SEFFEN" so as to make for the Ramu River. The natives took them inland and they were captured by a patrol of 4 Jap soldiers. Americans were without arms except for one pistol. They were taken prisoner to the village of "GIRI" (W) C 5827. After binding the Americans the Japanese beat them with pieces of timber and tried to induce the natives to do so too. The Natives say they refused to help despite threats by the Japs. When the patrol moved off from GIRI one of the airmen was too weak from his wounds and refused to or could not move. The Japs shot him and the natives buried him near GIRI Village. The Americans were taken from GIRI to "AKAKOM" a small village about three miles south of GIRI. Here it is stated one of the airmen struck a Jap and was beaten to death by them, the natives again refused to help although some say they gammoned to save themselves being killed. The American killed at AKAKOM is said to have worn the marks of a Technical Sergeant. The remaining two Americans were brought by the Japs down to Bogia, one was so bad that he had to be carried the latter half of the trip. The one who was carried is also said to have been a sergeant and he died after his arrival at Bogia (W) C 8229, the remaining one was shot the same day as the Japs were leaving. The one that was shot had his head cut off after he was killed. Both airmen were buried in the Sisters Garden at the Bogia Mission Station and their graves have been located. Although it is considered that some of the airmen were evidently treated harshly by some of the natives that were with the Japs, I was unable to obtain any evidence strong enough to convict them for trial.
